

Odd solids

A teacher gave his students four solids and asked them to find the odd one out.

Fran said the tetrahedron was the odd one out.

Tony said the cube was the odd one out.

The teacher said they were both right if they could give a reason.

Can you give a reason for Fran and a reason for Tony to be right?

Are there any other of these solids that could be considered to be the odd one out?

